Constitutional Maintenance Inquiry Worksheet

Reusable research tool · Independent use

Use a copy for one specific governmental question, including a safeguard that appears to work. Complete only the parts that help establish what is known and what action, if any, is justified; mark unknowns rather than guessing. A useful first pass may require only a clear question, a primary source, relevant contrary evidence, and a possible next action. Complete additional sections as the inquiry develops. This is a reusable, independent research tool—not a submission or approval process. Do not include sensitive personal records or confidential government or Tribal information in public copies.

Inquiry at a glance

- Working title, optional reference, and date/revision:
- Question being examined (one or two sentences):
- Present stage (initial lead / gathering evidence / evaluating options / concluded / unresolved):
- Author or reviewer, if useful; related inquiry or corrected earlier version (optional):

Responsibility, scope, and relevant safeguards

- What public responsibility is involved, and which institution has the legal duty or authority?
- Who is affected; what happened or may happen; what dates, jurisdiction, or legal boundaries matter?
- What conditions are necessary for the responsibility to be fulfilled in this instance?
- What is the specific possible failure—or functioning safeguard—being tested?
- What continued to work? What lawful outcomes or competing explanations could change the assessment?
- If comparisons or rates matter: population, stage, time period, denominator, method, and limits:
- Relevant area(s) in the Family Architecture Atlas, if useful; leave ownership open if uncertain:

Evidence and law

Claim or question	Primary source (issuer, date, locator)	Contrary evidence or working safeguard	Limits, corrections, or next check

- Which primary documents, records, or observations actually support the material claims? Record issuers, dates, and locators in the table.
- What records have not been retrieved? Which claims are disputed or have been corrected?
- What law applied at the time, what law applies now, and who is legally empowered to respond?

- What remedies, oversight, administrative options, or lawful safeguards already exist? Which were used, and with what result?

From legal responsibility to verified results (complete only relevant rows)

Stage	Status (supported / disputed / unknown / N/A)	Dated evidence, result, or missing fact
Lawful duty or authorization
Legally usable funding or resources
Staff, systems, and operating capacity
Action, service, or response delivered
Oversight, review, or enforcement
Independent verification of the result, where required

If a change is worth exploring (optional)

- Compare possible responses, including existing-law remedies, administrative action, further oversight, no action, and possible legislation:
- If a particular response is proposed: what legal authority and responsible institution would carry it out?
- What would implementation require (people, systems, funding, time, other offices, and necessary handoffs)?
- Whose rights or interests are affected; what safeguards, review, appeals, and outcome checks would be needed?
- What happens if a necessary step fails or an institution changes? Identify rights and duties that survive:
- What fiscal, legal, factual, operational, or formal questions require further examination? Record contrary analysis:
- Formal checking, if useful: specify the encoded claim, assumptions, and limits; do not treat a passing check as proof of external facts:

What action, if any, should follow?

- Working assessment: functioning safeguard / lawful outcome / possible problem / corrected under existing means / unresolved / no substantiated failure:
- Action supported now, if any: none / obtain records / oversight question / existing remedy / administrative correction / referral / explore legislation / other:
- Why does the current evidence support that action rather than a stronger or different one?
- Who has lawful authority to act, by what route, and what is the next concrete step?
- If action is premature, what specific evidence or legal decision is needed first?
- What result would show the issue resolved—or require the assessment to be revised?
- Dated corrections, source/attribution notes, and sharing or confidentiality limits:

A valid outcome can be a working safeguard, an unresolved question, an existing-law resolution, or no new law. Do not turn an open question into an established failure or assume every inquiry must produce legislation. Independent use needs no approval.
